

Creator-Being Stewardship

John Gray: Greetings, everyone! Chris and I have the pleasure of being your speakers today.

The Body of God on earth is a heavenly design composed of a multitude of Creator-Beings forming a magnificently organized collective. The individual human forms composing this collective are all over the planet, located everywhere here and now, connected to one another by the pneumaplasm which we each generate and blend into to the whole. You and I are among many who compose this spiritual body. Spiritual things may only be discerned spiritually; we know one another this way by reason of our generations, living in Attunement.

In the Tone of Life teleconference two weeks ago, Tom Walsh asked me to read a paragraph I'd previously written to the Tone of Life coordinators. I'll read again a slightly amended version.

“I've been experiencing a major shift in recent years from a predominantly ‘bodybuilding era’—the process of a spiritual collective becoming consciously Self-aware—to now a functioning body of the Lord God on Earth, unified by light and radiant with light. Those with a background in the Emissary program will know this is fulfillment of the vision Uranda and Martin and other spiritual leaders lived and served, and is now a reality on Earth. This is, to me, the primary purpose that Tone of Life associates serve, along with many more configurations of Creator-Beings in conscious form: All together we give voice to the Beloved once again, on-Tone, pitch-perfect.”

The Body of the Lord God is a spiritual manifestation, not based in material association or in shared beliefs, but in actual spiritual expression. Within the larger spiritual body is a small collective embodying Creator-Being consciousness. These relative few compose the focus of the Lord God emerging from above the crossover point into His world. In my perception, the key right now for this portion of the larger body is a critical transition from an aspirational perspective, (notwithstanding how accurate) where the light of Being is sensed and even seen, to an inspirational perspective, born out of personal identity in the source of light: I AM. Let us so function together!

Chris Jorgensen: Thank you, John. Very well said. I appreciate this opportunity to be with you and to work with everyone online this morning.

Over the past few months Donna, Joseph Antell (brother-in-law and living genius in correlating body function and supplementation) and I, have been purposefully exploring new aspects of the Attunement radiation. Recent Heartland Attunement Zoom sessions were helpful in creating a new Heaven, a new pneumaplasmic Heaven. The sessions opened vibrational space for those participating to sense and share in fresh and unfamiliar ranges of pneumaplastm or heavenly/spiritual substance. We used the relationships of the endocrine glands as our guide in these sessions: the thymus, the pineal and the islets of Langerhans/pancreas, the pituitary and adrenals, and the thyroid and gonads.

Most online today have gray hair like me; we have spent a good part of our life experience learning. The purpose of our life's experiences (and for many here that includes time associated with the Emissary program) were designed to bring about a shift in consciousness, finally coming to and arriving at the crossover point in divine identity where I am a Creator-Being having a human experience.

Arriving at the crossover point you become aware that you stand alone in your own spiritual substance—no more dependence on others for pneumaplastm. All the business of the world below the crossover point fades in meaning while a new door opens to explore and to fill the new space, the new Heaven with the required pneumaplastm. I say required because without these finer ranges of pneumaplastm the discernment, understanding and wisdom of Being contained and revealed through Heaven, cannot be known.

Earlier John mentioned a body of consciousness representing the Lord God. When you consider the trillions of cells in your human body, how many of those cells carry consciousness? Probably very few do. The requirement is for a few cells who are active and participating in the generation of Heaven, such that the rest of the body can move with it. So, the Heartland Attunement sessions were designed to specifically assist in allowing the Pattern of Being to infuse into the Pattern of Form.

Here is an image that illustrates what I am saying:

Looking at the image, you can see that a process of infusion or ascension is at work in each person as well as in collective humankind and the whole planet. It transpires because the consciousness of who I am is at the crossover point—the heart, in the diagram. On the left side is the Shekinah: the Fire that Burns, the Light that Glows, and the Cloud of Glory. On the right side is the Pattern of Form showing how the qualities of Being are expressed through the human form.

Living in divine identity at the crossover point—Donna calls this living in Attunement—we find ourselves quite alone, as I mentioned earlier. We are present in our own divine radiance and that is it! In this consciousness, as you look around, you will likely notice a few others standing at the crossover point with you. To use a line from Chris Foster—“We are a company of Creator-Beings with fire in our nostrils”—a company of Creator-Beings here to steward Life’s radiation and to not get involved in Life’s processes. We are here to radiate and to bless the specific fields that each one creates by reason of divine Presence, and then, through our collective radiation, to radiate and bless the larger field of the planet. We have a unique creative opportunity today to work together to release our collective Attunement radiation purposefully into the larger world.

We are going to begin sharing Attunement, but before we do, I want to say something about patterns. Energy, whether life energy or other kinds of energy, always shows itself in a pattern. Thinking back to the image, one aspect of the Shekinah Pattern of Being is the Light that Glows; this element is where true patterns are formed. When such patterns are imbued with the glory of Life’s radiation we have living patterns. There are lots of examples of living patterns, such as a tree, a rabbit, a human body, a dolphin. In reality, the Universe is a living body; it is alive. The Solar System is a living body; it is alive. Our planet is a living body; it is alive. This said, below the crossover point, there are other kinds of patterns. They do not have life in them. They are energy patterns created by human thoughts and feelings, and at times actions. A good word for this is belief. Such humanly created energy patterns or beliefs tend to govern human behavior. Many of these patterns are operating without the person being aware of it and, remember, the pattern has no life in it! You cannot generate Heavenly pneumaplastm on that basis. Actually, these types of energy patterns interfere with Life. In last weekend’s Heartland Attunement Zoom session, we considered the thyroid and gonads relationship and its aspect of the renewal of flesh contained in it. However, with the interference of human energy patterns there is a limit as to what Life can achieve.

So, I invite you to release/share your Attunement radiation and work with me to help dissolve two humanly created energy patterns—beliefs. The first human energy pattern we'll work with is death. Death is a void, a blank, and empty. There is nothing real in it! But because of this energy pattern, nearly everyone on the planet is afraid of death. There are very strong human feelings in this belief. For example, in hospitals today they do everything to keep the human form alive. Many people feel and say that once the physical body dies there is nothing. As a side note here, I use the word transition rather than death and have encouraged others in my teachings to use it because this is what the experience really is.

Let's share Attunement. Put the death pattern in your receiving hand—usually the left for most of us—and use your giving hand to direct your Attunement radiation into it and through it, letting the pattern dissolve. An alternative here is to hold the pattern between your hands and consciously direct your radiation into and through it. Let's share Attunement for a couple of minutes. Near the end I will issue a creative command from this grouping into the world of humanity. Share Attunement.

Let the human pattern of death dissolve! Let the heart of humankind know that what is real is Life—eternal Life.

The second human energy pattern we'll work with is judgment or, in other words, good and evil or good and bad. The belief in good and bad has been infused into every cell in the human body. From cartoons we watched as young children—good guys wore white, bad guys wore black—or modern-day television series where good (often police) and bad (criminals) often face off against each other. War is another example where it is considered good if you are killing the bad guys...but not good if the killing is happening to you or your family. This human belief energy pattern of judgment is present in every aspect of humanity's world and endeavors, especially in technology. Technology has made living in self-centeredness easier. Regardless of the specific science, any technology discovered and created always has both ends of the good and bad stick to handle. Examples are plentiful. Nuclear power: Cheap electricity, or a bomb that can destroy millions (as well as the planet's surface). Plastics are the perfect way to handle and contain everything and yet today, poisoning micro-plastic particles are found everywhere, including in the Arctic and in people's brains and blood! We have computers, cell phones and now the advent of Artificial Intelligence. What could possibly go wrong? Let me say it out loud: No, technology will not save humanity, or me!

Let's share our Attunement radiation for a couple of minutes with this judgment belief pattern of good and bad. As before, put the pattern in your receiving hand and radiate into it with your giving hand. Let your radiation go into and through this pattern and let it dissolve. I will speak a creative command from this grouping into the world of humanity.

Let the judgment energy pattern and the belief in good vs evil/bad, dissolve. What is real is the wholeness of Love's Universe.

Thank you for sharing your Attunement radiation with these humanly created energy patterns that are now dissolving! Stay alert in the next few days that you don't go back unconsciously into being controlled by these two energy patterns. Let us remain in Heaven as Creator-Beings, filling out the new Heaven with the generation of the many ranges of pneumaplasms required to let the Pattern of Being infuse into the Pattern of Form.

Now, let's work together with a living pattern. A living pattern has Life in it. The most obvious living pattern that we have beyond our own bodies is the planet. I invite you to share Attunement with the planet. You can pick up the Earth's life-pattern in your receiving hand and then radiate your current of love into the planet with your giving hand. Or you can hold the Earth between your two hands and consciously send your Attunement radiation into that living pattern. Share Attunement.

Let the radiation from this company of Creators bless the planet. We are eternally and joyfully stewards of this precious home that reveals the Presence of the Eternal One.

Thank you for sharing in this specific Attunement work. It is a pleasure having these radiant moments together as Creator-Beings.

John Gray: Thank you, Chris. There's quite a difference between humanly created energy patterns and the living pattern of the Earth.

The cacophonous mind-made world, the realm of human energy patterns, constantly vies for attention. Pay attention! Unfortunately, most people, most of the time, just give their attention away. But it's not free. There's a cost to paying attention. Think about it: What are you spending when you pay with your attention? The root of the word attend means "to extend or stretch toward." What does it take to extend or stretch toward something that wants your attention? Do “hot topics” call you? Below the crossover point in human identity, people pay attention with the substance of their life energy. That's the cost, and there are always ill effects to doing this. I've come to understand a vital distinction between paying attention and what I call investing attention. At the crossover point, attention extended with divine intention is an investment. Investments generate returns. This is what we were doing with Chris: We invested radiant attention into the energy patterns of death and judgment of good and evil and into the life pattern of our planetary home. This is Creator-Being function. In the Bible, it's put this way: “So shall my word be that goeth forth out of my mouth: it shall not return unto me void, but it shall accomplish that which I please, and it shall prosper in the thing whereto I sent it.” (Isaiah 55:11) These are not words of a distant, unknown God. These are our words as a body of Creator-Beings, here and now.

Simone Weil, an early 20th century French philosopher and author wrote, “Attention is the rarest and purest form of generosity. Absolutely unmixed attention is prayer.”

Where and why people's attention is directed reveal what matters most to them, to us. “And for where your treasure is, there will your heart be also.” (Mat 6:21) As Chris' diagram illustrates, where your heart is, there will your identity be.

We are participating in the absolutely vital transition from what may have once been wishful aspiration to collective Creator-Being function. Chris led us in a live experience of this; may it be consistently so with all of us.

The other day, driving to a destination I'd not been to before, I followed instructions from the disembodied voice coming through the GPS in my phone. We all get around this way these days, using the Global Positioning System, GPS—no maps. (I doubt our grandchildren have ever seen a paper roadmap.) When I got to where I was going, the voice said, “The destination is on your right. Arrived!” We are aware that the true divine global positioning system—the Presence of Creator-Being—has been providing inner direction all along. In consciousness, invest attention, life energy, in this. Listen radiantly. The voice you hear proves to be your own. “The destination, your position, is right here, right now. Arrived!”

Chris Jorgensen: Some time ago I wrote a blog about radiant perception, and I'm using that term now because this is the nature of our Attunement in the heaven. We do things radiantly. To close today, I'll read what I wrote.

“Radiant perception opens thinking and feeling to understanding the world in terms of patterns and lines of force. You're not taking anything into yourself in order to perceive or read it, therefore there's nothing to release or any life force to lose in this type of Attunement. Radiant perception is letting one's divine consciousness expand like water flowing out from a fountain center to its edges. I'm looking outward at my divine radiation, which goes around and includes and surrounds whatever I am Attuning. In this discerning process, you may perceive and understand subtle vibrations relative to whatever pattern and energies you are working with in your awareness. In essence, is this pattern living, or is it dissolving? Is it going up or down, vibrationally? How does this pattern fit into the larger whole? This is the nature of our Attunement in heaven.”

Thank you all for this opportunity to do this collective work. This is why I'm here!

John Gray: Figurative eons ago, we probably thought of the word “service” as meaning a speaker or two delivering stuff to us while we responsively absorbed it. Thankfully, over the years our consciousness of what constitutes service has matured and changed dramatically. Today we just had a very rich and generative experience of collective unified service together.
